‘An Urban History of Dublin Castle c. 1801-1880’

This project explores the impact of the Dublin Castle on everyday life in nineteenth-century Dublin. It considers how the presence of the Castle’s administrative complex and the viceregal court, affected social, cultural, and economic activity in Dublin city. It will examine how these impacts changed over time and whether they marked Dublin out as a different ‘kind’ of city from its counterparts in Ireland, Britain, and beyond.
